Glamorous geometrics and arches add a fresh angle to a heritage home's kitchen.

DESIGNER GREG NATALE: "At the core of this Edwardian home is a vestibule that features a series of arches leading to the various rooms of the house. These arches also inspire much of the building's decorative elements – the kitchen being no exception. From the Fornasetti splashback tiles with the arch motif, to the customised Shaker joinery – this kitchen reflects the home's history through contemporary gestures." What luxury item did you choose for this kitchen regardless of budget? "The Fornasetti 'Architettura' wall tiles were not cheap but the result was well worth it."

Joinery Solid American white oak shelves and drawers with walnut and black Japan stain and satin polyurethane finish by Distinctive Joinery. Wall finish Painted in Dulux Wash & Wear in 'Grey Pail'. Benchtop Caesarstone 'Sleek Concrete' stone benchtop from Arciuli Stone. Sink Hand-carved French limestone sink from France Heritage (no longer trading). Tapware 'Icon' gooseneck mixer from Astra Walker. Lighting 'Brasserie' pendant lights from Emac & Lawton Lighting. Flooring 'Moroccan Flower New' tiles from Jatana Interiors. Accessories Door and drawer handles from Mother of Pearl & Sons Trading. Vintage asparagus crate from Crowley & Grouch. Vessels, basket and cutting board all client's own. For stockists see Address Book.

DESIGNER MELANIE TOMLINSON: "The owners love to grow their own produce and cook with wholefoods which is what lead to the design of this 'Garden Kitchen'. Once a dead space used as an alternative entry from the back garden, this room is now a secondary kitchen for produce preparation and is linked to the outside entertaining areas. It is the owners' favourite room: it's fun, inviting and a delight to work in, they say. The craftsmen and trades involved with the project helped produce a stunning outcome." What luxury item did you choose for this kitchen regardless of budget? "The centrepiece is the custom French limestone sink – the delivery cost as much as the sink."
